Many Benefits Received From SERA

NUMEROUS PROJECTS ASSIST LOCAL ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

A distinctive feature of the Ocean Beach elementary school's progress this year has been the assistance rendered it by the various projects developed by the SERA. No less than seven distinct projects are under way at the present time which benefit the school in ways which would not be possible under the normal school procedure.

A major improvement is the landscaping of the school grounds. The playground has been smoothed and filled in, and bushes, shrubbery and lawn are to be planted around the new building.

Another improvement has been the cementing of a part of the school court and the installation of storm drains.

A third project has been additional playground supervision supplied by the SERA.

The services of a school matron have been obtained by still another project.

Thru the cooperation of the City Recreation department and the SERA evening entertainments, orchestra concerts, plays, and band concerts, will be offered from time to time.

Additional help for the school cafeteria has been obtained thru another SERA project.

Finally and possibly the most significant of all, the Ocean Beach school will benefit, as will all San Diego city schools, from the school curriculum project made possible by the SERA. One hundred expert workers—artists, writers, research workers—have been working since last November to provide additional teaching materials for classroom instruction. Paintings, pictures, diograms, models, charts and booklets are being prepared in such a way as to be of maximum help to San Diego children. Most of the work done for the curriculum project could not be duplicated at any cost. It will be of major help in bettering instruction in the San Diego schools.

Ownership of Public Utilities Subject for Tuesday Forum

The Town Forum of March 5th the public meeting to be held in the Ocean Beach school auditorium, is expected to be most interesting, with the subject, Public or Private Ownership of Public Utilities. G. H. P Dellman will speak in favor of private ownership and some well informed and able speaker will also be secured to represent the cause of public ownership.

Music will be furnished and everyone who can is invited to come. There is no charge.

BUILDING CONSTRUCTION AT BEACH GROWING

Activity in repairing and remodeling, as well as construction of some new homes, is becoming apparent at Ocean Beach, in all sections.

Recently permits have been granted as follows:

C. Davis, per W. B. Watson, frame stucco residence and garage, 2105 Guizot street, $4,600.

W. Mize, per Christensen and Pflaum, frame addition 4625 Cape avenue, $2 000.

J. E. Robertson, fence and lath house $400, at 3429 Hill street.

L. G. Hotchkiss, repairs by self $75, at 4925 Del Mar avenue.

We are also informed that two new stores will be built by San Goldberg in the 4900 block on Voltaire street, and a new store built on Newport avenue shortly on the lot adjoining Faber's store on the west.

SHRINERS ATTEND CHURCH IN OCEAN BEACH

Last Sunday at the 11 o'clock worship hour a large delegation of members of Al Bahr Temple, attended services at Trinity Episcopal church in Ocean Beach.

MANAGER MERCHANTS CENTRAL CREDIT SPEAKER

Joe Restine was chairman of Kiwanis luncheon meeting Wednesday noon, having as guest speaker C. D. Collom, manager of the Merchants Central Credit Ass'n. of San Diego.

Mr. Collom said that his organization now had about 500 members, consisting of merchants and professional people, that it was a mutual company which started business originally in 1908. The company has 26 employes and answer 200 to 300 credit inquires per day, saving a lot of money to their members and giving them the credit information they desire about a customer or, patient seeking credit. The concern makes a card indexed record in the name of the subject, with full record of all happenings that appear on the county records, such as real estate transfer, suits, divorce, judgments, sales and any information that will serve as a credit record, either for good or bad. The speaker said his organization was a clearing house of credit information, with national and inter-national affiliation, that it was a person or firm that made their own record, which was passed on to members as needed, and the member decided for themselves whether the customer should be entitled to the courtesy of credit buying.

Collom also said that San Diego at present has many racketeers and gyp artists, whom he warned against said that we would be flooded with them this year, and every person and business man should use utmost care in business relations with people they do not know.

Trade and buy only from a well known established business or concern who will be there months later to make you an adjustment if any unsatisfactory condition should arise.

Bill Frisbee of La Jolla was a visiting Kiwanian and Dr. Faulk of La Jolla was guest of Dick Barbour.

Owing to change in management of the Loma Tavern the next two meetings will be held at the Ocean Beach school cafeteria at 12:30 p. m. instead of 12:15.

EXHIBITS FROM ALL U S WILL BE AT MID-WINTER FLOWER SHOW, MARCH 14

Flowers amidst enchanting landscaping will attract lovers of natural beauty from all sections of the United States, at the 10th annual National Mid-winter Flower Show, which opens at Encinitas March 14 for four days.

Exhibitors from all parts of California have signified their intention of having displays at the show. According to T. C. Spruit, manager, a bigger flower show than in any year previous is expected.

Something new, which was tried out last year, that of having the rock gardens and landscape designs outside, in natural surroundings, and the cut flowers under cover, was an instant success, and the same procedure will be followed this year.

Each year of its ten years of existence the National Mid-winter Flower show has increased in importance.

The coastal region from Oceanside to San Diego is world famous for its bulb raising and its cut flowers. According to authorities, there is not another region in the United States that equals it.

VIRGINIA "D" CAFE TO AGAIN SERVE TURKEY DINNERS

Starting next Sunday the Virginia "D" cafe at Pacific Beach will give you the pleasure of again enjoying their turkey dinners, at least so Virginia said, if she could get Ed to catch a turkey by Saturday.

You will find the advertisement of the Virginia "D" elsewhere in this issue and the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Dorman will assure you that a highly satisfactory meal can always be found at their place.

The News does Job Printing

Exposition Activities Keeping Hundreds Busy On Planning

Many outstanding and interesting features are being signed up and made in readiness for the California Pacific International Exposition to open in San Diego May 29th.

Briefly, recently booked projects are:

Assurance for a $90,000 California State building at the California Pacific International Exposition, opening May 29. The outstanding feature of the State building it that its space will be made available, without cost, to the counties of the State for their exhibits; the California state exhibit taking a predominant place in the building.

State Senator Ed. Fletcher, who has headed San Diego's delegation in urging the State's participation in the Exposition, expressed gratification at the successful culmination of plans for the State building.

The State building will be an SERA project, arrangements for its construction having been effected between the local SERA committee and the State commission. Work is expected to start immediately under direction of Robert M. Gregory, SERA construction supervisor, according to Mr. Bacon.

Coincident with announcement of the State building, the Exposition offices stated that bids will be opened and construction started on the Travel and Transportation building, under private contract, and that the Hollywood Pottery will similarly be under way. Grading and leveling of the site for the Ford building now is under way by private contract, and bids are expected to be opened this week for construction of the Ford building foundation, under private contract.

The State building will be 228 feet long and 120 feet wide. Architecture will be of modern southwestern design, embellished with motifs taken from prehistoric southwestern architecture, in which the California atmosphere will be expressed in abundant floral adornments and hanging vines, according to Exposition Architect Richard S. Requa.

JENNY WREN EXHIBIT

Space in both the Spanish Village and the Palace of Foods and Beverages opening here May 29, for display of the products of the Jenny Wren company, makers of ready mixed flour for making pancakes, ginger bread, cakes, biscuits and waffles has been arranged for by Col. E. W. Edwards, demonstrator.

Colonel Edwards will also operate the cafe in the Spanish Village, where typical Spanish and Mexican foods will be served. The three exhibits will represent an investment of more than $25,000.

"DANCING CHESSMAN"

Doubtless there are ghosts of many famous old masters inhabiting the galleries of the Palace of Fine Arts, an important part of the California Pacific International Exposition, but it is a more material "ghost" which is causing considerable stir in one part of that building.

One of the more unique features contained therein is a set of chessmen, carved from ivory and evidently of Oriental workmanship. These are contained in a glass case and rest upon a glass tray.

Recently, according to Director Reginald Poland, the small figures have been creeping about the glass tray—the pawns chasing the bishops and the king following the queen around the various rooks in a very odd manner.

Attaches at the Palace of Fine Arts believe the movement of the chessmen is caused by heavy trucks, carrying material to the sites of new buildings for America's Exposition 1935. Or, perhaps the vibration, caused by the heavy guns of the Navy, practicing just off the San Diego coast, makes the figures move about.

GARDEN CLUB FEDERATION

The fourth annual meeting of the California Garden Club Federation on June 14-15-16 will attract thousands of the socially-elect women of the Exposition.

Business meetings will be held in the Floral Palace while a special program for June 16 is being planned for the open-air auditorium at the million-dollar organ.

A select musical program is being prepared for the Music Bowl, adjoining the Ford Palace and Tower, by Mrs. Cecilia B. Willadsen, chairman of the public arrangements committee, and Mrs. Lucy T. Kirkley, corresponding secretary of the federation, both of whom are directing activities from Los Angeles.

HUGE ADVERTISING CAMPAIGN

A nation-wide advertising campaign, involving the investment of a huge sum of money, is now being inaugurated by the Greyhound Lines in connection with the California Pacific International Exposition, which opens here May 29.

This gigantic campaign will have the support, not only of the Pacific Greyhound Lines on the coast, but the entire Greyhound system which covers the country as does no other transportation company.

Full page color advertisments will be published in many national magazines, including the Saturday Evening Post, Collier's and other popular media.

Reprints of these striking advertisements will be reproduced and displayed on the counters of depots and travel bureaus thruout the nation.

Large reproductions of these advertisements also will be placed in from in Greyhound depots all over the country. They will be 28 by 38 inches in size.

More than a quarter-million special folders, featuring the Exposition will be distributed nationally.

At least four other folders and time tables will mention the San Diego Exposition and carry photographs and editorial mention. It is estimated that a million of these folders will be distributed.

Special designs, inviting the public to visit San Diego during the Exposition, will be printed on all Greyhound stationery. Many other forms of direct-by-mail advertising, window displays and radio advertising will be employed, while a heavy newspaper advertising campaign will feature the Exposition.

HIGHWAY PATROL

When the California Association of Highway Patrol holds its convention at the California Pacific International Exposition next fall, a spectacular demonstration of expert motorcycle riding will be staged.

Under the direction of R. C. Wilkinson, in charge of highway control in the San Diego division, a three days' program is being arranged for the state convention, October 14, 15, and 16. The motorcycle races will be held the first day, and scores of expert riders in the west will contest for prizes.

ZOO WILL ENTERTAIN MANY

The San Diego zoo itself will be one of the high lights of the Exposition. It is second largest in the country, from point of specimens, and the third largest in size.

It is also distinguished by several "onlys". The only pair of mountain gorillas in captivity are housed there. The seal pond contains the only herd of rare Galapagos fur seals in captivity. The huge flying-bird cage, largest in the world, shelters the only man-of-war birds in captivity in the world, and Mrs. Belle Benchley, curator of the zoo is the only woman in the world to hold such a job.

TREASURES OF ARCHERY

The bow and arrow was used universally in bygone ages according to the exhibits in the famous Joseph Jessop Archery collection, which will be featured in the Palace of Science.

Medieval archers went forth to battle with all sizes and types of these lethal instruments, it seems. The collection offers bows, arrows, armor and shields from such widely separated places as China, Burmah, Korea, Japan, Guiana, Africa, New Zealand, Australia, Germany and the villages of the American Indian.

Poisoned darts of African pygmy tribes offer striking contrast to the mighty cross-bows of German warriors of seven centuries ago.

Here, too is a bow, originated and used by the giant Mongols who were ruled by Ghengis Kahn. It is of the reflex type, requiring a pull of 100 pounds. The arrow, with a range of 500 yards, driven by this tremendous impulse, is capable of piercing a three-inch plank, or driving itself thru a man or a horse.

W. E. Pate, curator, states that he has never found a person strong enough to draw this mighty bow. The back of the bow is of sinew and the belly of whalebone.

POSTER STAMPS FOR EXPO

Millions of poster stamps, honoring the California Pacific International Exposition, now are on sale in leading local stores and in high class stores, hotels and travel bureaus thruout the United States. They will not be peddled from door to door.

Printed in perforated sheets of 25 different stamps to a sheet, the stamps, which are about one by one-and-one-half inches each, present scenes of San Diego and Southern California thru the medium of a beautiful five-color printing process.

They have been designed by John Sirigo, official photographer of America's Exposition-1935, and are the result of two months' work. The sheets, retailing at 10c each, will be sought by stamp collectors, as well as being attractive for general use.

The official seal of the Exposition is printed on each sheet.

PASTOR HONORED WITH BIRTHDAY PARTY.

A surprise birthday party was given Monday evening at Wallace hall by the ladies from Ocean Beach and Mission Beach, honoring the Rev. John Osborn, on his 60th birthday.

More than a hundred members of the congregation took part in the dinner and it was a decidly happy occasion for Rev. Osborn.

CARD PARTY WALLACE HALL

Next Tuesday evening, March 5, the guild of Trinity Episcopal church will hold a card party at Wallace hall to which all friends and the public generally is invited.

This is Shrove Tuesday and will be the last party by this organization until after the close of the Lenten season.

New Electric Rates Low as Any Place.

"New residential electric rates effective in Ocean Beach March 1, and applying on all meter readings taken thereafter, places this territory in the favorable position of having its charges for electric service among the lowest in the nation," said Mr. W. F. Raber, president of the San Diego Consolidated Gas and Electric company. This comparison is based upon an official report made by the Federal Power Commission showing the result of nation-wide survey covering rates charged for domestic electricity, as of January 1, 1935.

The domestic and commercial users of electricity receive greatest benefits under the new rate schedule—the reduction to the average residential user being 10 per cent and the commercial lighting customers receiving a reduction amounting to 12 per cent to the average user. In each case the new rates as approved by the Railroad Commission rewards the person who desires to gain full advantage from the use of electricity because, as the use increases the cost per kilowatthour becomes less.

Every residential customer using over 12 kilowatthours of electric services will receive some reduction under the new rates. The per kilowatthour charge from 13 to 50 having been reduced from 5.75 cents not to 4.9 cents net. The next 150 kilowatts will cost but 5 cents per kilowatthour and all over 200 kilowatthour at 2 cents per kilowatthour.

Bank Official Optimistic About Exposition

Los Angeles, Feb. 26. (Special) The California Pacific International Exposition which opens at San Diego May 29, will outshine in many respects the World's Fair at Chicago, and certainly will be an exposition to which every resident of California should pay an extended visit, according to Dr. A. H. Giannini, chairman of the general executive committee, Bank of America. The San Diego exposition will draw more than 5-000,000 visitors, which Dr. Giannini believes is a very conservative estimate.

"San Diego has a way of doing things in a magnificent manner," said Dr. Giannini. "As a city of 38,-000 population it raised $1,000,000 and put on 'The Exposition Beautiful' in 1915-16. Today is has more than 180,000 residents. It organized the first Community Chest on the Pacific coast, and was the first city in the country to develop a nationwide advertising program. Seemingly, San Diego knows hows.

"In beautiful Balboa park, about the nucleus of permanent buildings of the earlier exposition and amid superb horticultural plantings, rose gardens and exotic blooms, San Diego is adding numerous other buildings of concrete construction to house the 1935 Exposition. This construction is far advanced and only a few major buildings remain to be completed.

"That one may grasp the scope of the California Pacific International Exposition, I need only mention the participation of the Ford Motor company. This company plans to expend more than $2 000,000 on their San Diego exhibit, installing one much larger and more comprehensive than that at the Chicago Fair. Both Henry and Edsel Ford plan to make an extended visit to San Diego.

"Bank of America has built a permanent concrete building with vault and full equipment to house its 'Exposition Branch' at the entrance to the grounds. This branch will not be in the nature of an exhibit but a full-fledged branch which will render a complete banking service to exhibitors and to more than 5,000,000 visitors.

"Your vacation plans this year should include San Diego."

FLORAL ASSOCIATION WILL MEET MAR. 1

The Ocean Beach Floral association will hold a meeting Friday evening, Mar. 1, at 7:30 at the civic center building, across from the police station.

All persons interested in beautifying the Beach, a spring flower show, or other improvement of this nature, will be welcome.

COLLIER PARK SITE FOR SCHOOL TO BE ON BALLOT

The San Diego city council in its meeting Tuesday heeded the pleas of local organizations asking that this matter be placed on the spring election ballot.

The citizens effected are practically 100 per cent in favor of turning a portion of this unimproved land to the school board for high school purposes and there is no reason why the site should not be used for the purpose requested.

As soon as the city council last week asked for an expression from those interested, letters were sent in favoring the project, from the Ocean Beach chamber of commerce, Kiwanis club, Woman's club, PTA and V.F.W.

It was cited in one of the letters that Point Loma high school has a capacity for 700 students while the enrollment now is 1200.

SMALL WORD "IF" AND ITS PART IN WORLD HISTORY

"If," says Albert Payson Terhune, writing in the Elks Magazine, has done more to change the course of history's wayward currents than all of the forces of man rolled together. Here are some of his own best ones:

If Thomas Edison, when a poor newsboy, hadn't been hit over the ears by a cranky brakeman for stealing a ride on a train, he wouldn't have been deaf. If he hadn't been deaf, he would not have perfected the phonograph.

If Napoleon's mapmaker had not formed the habit of scamping his work, he would have drawn the line indicating the sunken road at Waterloo and the French emperor would have carried the day.

If the mother of George Washington had not been stricken with a sudden hysterical whim just as her son was leaving to join the British navy, the father of his country would probably have been a British naval officer.

If a bullet had swerved by a very few inches in 1914, when a crazed student aimed at an Austrian grand duke, perhaps there would have been no World war.

If Patrick Henry had not been too lazy to make a success of his grocery store, he would not have turned to statesmanship and stirred the nation with his oratory.

If Major Andre had been content to wait for his boat to come back to its moorings at West Point, or if he had chosen some other land route to New York, or if he had had the sense to keep his mouth shut instead of babbling needlessly when he met three card players along the road—the United States probably would be a British province today. As it was, he was captured and Benedict Arnold's treason was discovered and America was saved.

Now Science Explains Why So Many People Past 40

Feel That They're Slipping Losing Their "Grip" on Things

Many people 'round 40 think they're "growing old." They feel tired a lot . . . "weak." Have headaches, dizziness, stomach upsets.

Well, scientists say the cause of all this, in a great many cases, is simply an acid condition of the stomach. Nothing more.

All you have to do is to neutralize the excess stomach acidity.

When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals and before going to bed. That's all!

Try this. Soon you'll feel like another person! Take either the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS'" or the convenient new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM: Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at all drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

"Little Stories for Bedtime" by Thornton W. Burgess

PETER DISCOVERS SPOOKY

PETER RABBIT had been startled by a voice as he was passing a certain big apple tree in the Old Orchard. The voice had seemed to come from that big apple tree. Peter stopped short and stared up through the branches of the tree. Look as he would he couldn't see anybody. There wasn't a leaf on that tree and he could see all through it. Peter blinked, felt foolish, very foolish indeed. He knew that had there been anyone sitting on one of those branches he couldn't have helped seeing them.

"You Haven't Told Me Yet Why You Look So Unhappy, Peter," Said Spooky.

"Don't look so high, Peter. Don't look so high," said the voice with a chuckle. This time it sounded as if it came right out of the trunk of the tree. Peter stared at the trunk, then suddenly laughed right out. Just a few feet above the ground was a good-sized hole in the tree, and poking his head out of it was a funny little fellow with big eyes and a hooked beak.

"You certainly did fool me that time, Spooky," cried Peter. "I ought to have recognized your voice, but I didn't."

Spooky the Screech Owl, for that is who it was, came out of the hole in the tree, and without a sound from his wings flew over and perched just above Peter's head. He was a little fellow, not more than eight inches high, but there was no mistaking the family to which he belonged. In fact he looked very much like a small copy of Hooty the Great Horned Owl, so much so that Peter felt a little cold shiver run over him, although he had nothing in the world to fear from Spooky. His head seemed to be almost as big around as his body, and he seemed to have no neck at all. He was dressed in bright reddish brown with little streaks and bars of black. Underneath he was whitish with little streaks of black and brown. On each side of his head was a tuft of feathers. They look like ears, and some people think they are ears, which is a mistake. His eyes were round and yellow with a fierce hungry look in them. His bill was small and almost hidden among the feathers of his face, but it was hooked just like the bill of Hooty.

As Spooky settled himself he turned his head till he could look squarely behind him, then brought it back again so quickly that to Peter it looked as if it had gone clear around. You see, Spooky's eyes are fixed in their sockets, and he cannot move them from side to side. He has to turn his whole head in order to see to one side or the other.

"You haven't told me yet why you look so unhappy, Peter," said Spooky.

RULES

By ANNE CAMPBELL

IT WAS because of rules he had to go
Away from all he cherished. . . .
On the street.
He looked back to the ward and saw the glow
Of lamps. . . . He could not help it if his feet
Would drag a bit, as, climbing on a bus,
He rode in silence almost ominous.

He thought of rules the whole way to the rooms
Her presence had made sweet. . . .
The hospital
Must have them, I suppose. . . . A man presumes
But after all, there was his child, his wife—
All that he held most precious in this life.

But when he washed his work-grimed hands and lay
Alone within their bed, he thought again
Of the not very distant, happy day
When rules to separate them would be vain.
Smiling, he thought (Queer how a grin can smart!):
"No rules can keep her image from my heart!"

QUESTION BOX

by ED WYNN, The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I was to a vaudeville show last night. In one of these acts a fellow with a terrible voice sang a song. Although he sang it badly the melody still haunts me. How do you account for that?

Sincerely,
K. OTTICK.

Answer: That is easily explained. The reason the melody haunts you is because the singer was so bad he probably murdered the song.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am a man forty-five years of age. I am single. I do not chew, smoke, drink, swear, dance or gamble. Do you think I will live to be ninety years of age?

Yours truly,
A. MARVEL.

Answer: You probably will. But, if you don't do any of the things you mention, why do you want to live forty-five years longer?

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I arrived in a small town, one day last week, and I had a heavy grip. I saw a tramp at the station and thought I would have him carry my bag for me. I asked him if he wanted to make a quarter. He said "no" and walked away from me. How do you account for that?

Yours truly,
SAYLES MAN.

Answer: He probably had a quarter.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I was in New York last week and saw a lot of plays. Why do the managers produce plays which are so "raw"?

Yours truly,
Q. PONN.

Answer: The managers know the newspapers will "roast" them.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I smoke 60 to 70 cigarettes a day and my doctor says this habit will affect my brains. Do you agree with him?

Yours truly,
SIG ARR.

Answer: No! If you had any brains you wouldn't smoke 70 cigarettes a day.

COOKING WITH COCONUT

NOW that the fresh coconuts are in the market it is the time to use some of the good recipes that are being worked out by industrious housewives.

To prepare the coconut, pierce the eyes with an ice pick and let the milk drain into a cup. Now place the coconut in the oven for a few minutes to become hot, then crack it and the meat will come out nicely without sticking to the shell.

Orange Coconut Creams.

Melt one tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan, add two cupfuls of granulated sugar, one-half cupful of coconut milk and one-fourth cupful of water. Boil to the soft ball stage, 236 degrees Fahrenheit, stirring only when necessary. Cool and beat like chocolate fudge. Add flavoring, using two teaspoonfuls of orange juice and one-half teaspoonful of grated peel; mix well with two cupfuls of freshly grated coconut. Mold with the hands, taking a tablespoonful at a time. Roll in coconut and set aside to harden. This recipe yields about one and one-half pounds.

Fresh Coconut Candy.

Take one cupful of coconut milk, add three cupfuls of sugar and put on to boil; cook ten minutes after the boiling begins then add all of the grated coconut and cook five minutes longer. Beat until it is cold, pour out into greased baking sheets and cut into squares.

Coconut Cookies.

Take one cupful of fresh coconut, add to two-thirds of a cupful of butter and one and one-third cupfuls of sugar creamed, add two beaten eggs, one-half cupful of chopped raisins and sift together one and one-half cupfuls of flour with four teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one teaspoonful each of cinnamon and nutmeg and one-half teaspoonful of cloves. Add the dry ingredients alternately with one-fourth cupful of coconut milk.

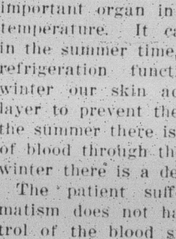
Let Our Motto Be GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. LLOYD ARNOLD
Professor of Bacteriology and Preventive Medicine, University of Illinois, College of Medicine.

REGARDING RHEUMATISM

You will find rheumatic persons saying that they can tell when a storm or cold weather is coming because they can feel it in their bones or in their joints; and you will hear other persons laughing at the idea that weather can affect rheumatism.



But the rheumatic persons are right. Weather does affect them.

Students of preventive medicine are beginning to consider man and his environment as one organic whole and are studying some of our diseases from this standpoint. We have almost exhausted the field of bacteriology trying to find germs as the cause of disease. Recent work tends to show that the skin is an important factor in rheumatism.

The skin is not just a covering mantle or protective cloak of the body. It is a vast organ concerned with the sense of feel and touch. It secretes sweat and oily substances. It also excretes certain things from the body.

We are finding that the protective action of the skin can be extended to guarding us against invasion by germs around us. The action of sunlight and ultra-violet light on the skin is well known to the layman.

We know that the skin can be changed by the temperature of the air, by the humidity of the air, and also by changes in barometric pressure. The skin can be thought of as a big receptor organ that receives from the outside world messages of all kinds and transmits these to the internal organs, through blood and nerve channels.

The capillary blood channels in the skin are thought by many authorities to be involved in rheumatism. It must not be forgotten that man's skin is an important organ in maintaining body temperature. It can eliminate heat in the summer time, which is really a refrigeration function. During the winter our skin acts as a covering layer to prevent the loss of heat. In the summer there is an increased flow of blood through the skin, and in the winter there is a decreased flow.

The patient suffering from rheumatism does not have a proper control of the blood supply of the skin and the secretion of sweat. There is a tendency toward spasmodic contraction of the capillaries and at times these capillaries become engorged with blood. In other words, there is an instability in the blood vessels, controlling system.

We just mentioned that the skin is an important organ in controlling body temperature. The rheumatic individual undergoes wide fluctuations in skin temperature. There is oftentimes a subnormal temperature of the skin. This influences the metabolism of the body in that we lose the heat-regulatory function of the skin that is so important for our well-being. When the temperature of the cells within the body changes there is a change in the chemical products of these cells, and many authorities now think that this explains in part the development of pain in the muscles and joints.

This is a new conception of rheumatism and helps explain some phases of the disease better than the older bacteriological theory that was difficult to substantiate in many instances. The abnormal sensitiveness to changes in weather that are experienced by all rheumatics is due to the fact that these people do not have the proper skin function. The circulation of the skin is changed as a result of the alterations in temperature, humidity and barometric pressure in such a manner that internal disturbances take place leading to the development of pain in certain areas of the body.

It is well known that rheumatic pains can develop as a result of hot temperature environments as well as cold. Over-exertion and fatigue followed by chilling of the body are also common factors. Much has been said of cold damp air causing rheumatism. So long as the skin function is normal, muscle or joint pains will not develop because of exposure to damp and chilly conditions. Damp cold air causes the body to lose heat rapidly if the blood vessels of the skin do not react promptly, by diminishing the blood supply to the skin. Hence the body does not become cooler because we produce the same amount of heat and we lose much less heat. When the skin function is abnormal this does not occur and consequently the rheumatic develops pains.

The proper treatment for rheumatism is to aid the skin by artificial means to re-establish a good circulatory system. This is the reason that a hot water bottle placed on the skin close to the area of pain will often stop the discomfort. The proper treatment is an organized medical plan of various types of physical therapy, such as light treatment, heat treatments, massage, baths, all of which aid the skin to re-establish its proper circulation.

We all live under the same weather conditions. Due to a lack of control of his skin, the rheumatic cannot adjust himself. The rest of us adjust ourselves perfectly and are in no way incapacitated by such weather changes. The rheumatic speaks very truly when he says he can feel weather changes.

WAR AGAINST CRIME

With 600 trained crime experts at work, it seems as though the suppression of crime with more criminal punishment, would be a near possibility in United States. The Department of Justice has become thoroughly aroused over the increase of holdups, kidnaping, bank robberies and thieving. It is estimated that there are 5,000,000 criminals in the United States!

This is not only morally appalling—it is an exceedingly dangerous situation, while the bill for their support amounts to ten billion dollars a year! These five million predatory people kill twelve thousand citizens every year, assault one hundred thousand more, rob fifty thousand and burglarize forty thousand homes! There were 3,278 bank robberies in this country during the past five years. Our homicide rate is twenty times that of England. Each year ten people out of each hundred thousand in America meet death by crime.

No wonder Uncle Sam is getting tired of having a pistol held at his head! Now, Attorney General Cummings was recently appointed governor of the Philippines, but President Roosevelt changed his mind, and will keep him home, for no other purpose but to tackle the reform job of lessening crime. He has already taken charge of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice. He has rolled up his sleeves for a fight against crime and says he proposes to carry it to a finish. With his courage and brains he will do it if his life is spared.

Justice halls must wake up or the crime flood will wash society into the ocean of disgrace and death. Too many of our jails are only "training schools" for crime! is the appalling indictment from the lips of a famous prison warden. He also says that "The finest prison we can build will never be anything but a monument to neglected youth." With 4,500,000 fingerprints on record, it looks like a serious situation and calls for drastic action.

This old world on which we abide is more of a mystery than man will ever be able to solve. Millions of years have made many creations, and the astronomer is getting new revelations nearly every day. The accuracy with which it revolves with its clock-work precision is evidence that there is no guess work going on, but a strange perfect ruling is mightily manifesting its work among men. No one can fathom some of the secrets of the universe. For instance, whirling through space, this old earth generates centrifugal forces that would tear it to bits were it not that stronger earth gravitational forces hold it together. The law of gravity is a giant force that not only keeps the earth in a ball, but it holds building structures, oceans and billions of other great objects firm in their places.

The restaurant or cafe is the "big thing" of today. We all eat around our own festive board at home, and praise the cook for her culinary art, but there is something distinctive about "eating out," and the desire gets into the blood of everyone. After all, the cafe or restaurant is a fine art—most of them. People not only expect their wants to be satisfied by a healthy helping of food, but they look for hospitality; they want everything that belongs with the service. The modern eating house has a rich appeal to people and the patronage is growing by all appearances. To the one who puts out an attractive sign and then serves the right kind of food, that man or woman will ever have a beaten path to the door.

Many cities suffer simply because the citizens generally do not know the attractions of their city and what it provides for the enterainment and comforts for the tourists.

* * * *

One of California's most graceful ornamental trees is the Deodar, an East India specia, highly valued for its size and beauty. Its majestic branches reach out in perfect symmetrical grandeur. It is a ornamental tree and during the Christmas holiday season thousands decorate them as out-door Christmas trees. In certain forests of England and America, where this tree grows in abundant size, it is cut for its timber. There is scarcely a public park in this state that does not have these for shade and beauty. Being of the cedar family, it is an evergreen tree.

* * * *

There seems to be a definite and sufficient reason to believe, judging from the upward path out of the greatest depression which has assailed the country, that we are finally on the road to better times. Things are not established in all lines of trade and industry, enough as yet, to indicate every beneficial sign, but the general aspect is encouraging. The old saying that you can't bring return of prosperity by turning the clock back, may fit our present condition, for too much return of good times has been preached threadbare again and again. The pendulum of the Clock of Time swings to and fro just as though nothing ever happens; it leaves humanity to do the stewing, but prosperity and good fortune comes in its own good time.

* * * *

The celebration of "Go to church Sunday," was recently observed and it is believed that many who had never been inside of a church for years, turned out on that day. This sounds encouraging. Without the saving salt of the church, society would soon perish. A good many who "tune in" any Sunday morning from 10 to 11 oclock and hear the teacher of the Taubman Bible class will remember his old familiar closing is always, "Good bye, God bless you and go to church!" The uniform Sunday-school lesson is not only the greatest single tie binding the churches into unity, but also it is the one most potent educational tool in the hands of religion.

AMERICAN LEGION

OCEAN BEACH POST
NO. 433 and AUXILIARY

A NIGHT IN DIXIELAND

The Ocean Beach post No. 433 American Legion is sponsoring a real minstrel show Friday, March 8, at the Ocean Beach school auditorium presenting the "North Park Minstrels", an organization composed of business men and their wives. It is a real show and no mistake and everyone is urged to make an effort to see it. The proceeds which the Legion receives will be used expressly for the purpose of carrying on its welfare work and community betterment projects which are many and varied; and we need and want the support of the entire population of Ocean Beach.

If you have not yet inspected the new auditorium of the new school, here is your chance to combine that pleasure with good clean hilarious entertainment full of laughs from start to finish and good for the children as well as the grown-ups. It is the desire of the American Legion to furnish the best possible entertainment at all times and toward that end have viewed this show and selected it with that idea in mind. So don't forget the date Friday March 8, place new school auditorium, time eight o'clock sharp. Doors open at seven thirty. Come one! come all! and see a show you will long remember.

FRIENDS HELP CELEBRATE FIRST WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Alton T. Matthews, 4770 Santa Monica street, entertained twenty-one of their friends last Friday on the occasion of their first wedding anniversary.

The evening was spent in playing games, the heart and cupid motive being stressed.

Danity refreshments were served on card tables, each table having its own colorful "cotton" cloth.

After refreshments the guests brought out gaily wrapped packages they had smuggled into the house and presented them to the bride and groom of a year ago. When opened, the packages disclosed many lovely gifts of cotton and paper.

Those present were: Misses Catherine Gangitano, Grace Gangitano, Olga Chilgren, Vivian McLean, Alma Norgaard, Marjorie Ulmen, Ida Grace Cloe, Carmen McCandless, Ida Hays McCandless, Mary Sadler; Mrs. I. M. Putman, Mrs. Y. N Adams, Mrs. A. T. Matthews; Ed Shelburn, Leslie Ellaby, Holly C. Ruhnow, Don Grundstrom, Fred Ingram, Charles Crothers, Yancey Adams jr., Y. N. Adams and Alton Matthews.

JANUARY GASOLINE TAX REPORTED AT $3,002,383.93

Sacrament, February 22—California's gasoline tax for January has reached a total of $3,002,383.93, or $402,493.74 more than the tax for the first month of 1934. This gain of 1.5 per cent was announced here today by the State Board of Equalization when assessment of last month's tax of three cents per gallon on motor vehicle fuel was completed.

Contrasting the gain registered at the beginning of this year with a loss of 3.8 per cent shown by comparison of the January 1934 tax with that for the first month of 1933 the Equalization Board predicts that gasoline tax collections for 1935 may be expected to show a definite improvement.

LIEUT. BERT A. ALLEN
POST No. 2415
AND AUXILIARY

At the last meeting of the Lieut. Bert A. Allen post 2415, Comrade Joseph De Renne was welcomed as a new member, having transferred from Amaroc post 1512. Comrade Wm. H. Gage has returned to an active status in post affairs after a long period of hibernation. Spring is early this year.

Comrade Speer is the new post officer of the day and Comrade De Renne will guide the future of the post finances as quartermaster. Comrades Batt, Cinq-Mar and Busick are now the post trustees and no doubt will ably assist the quartermaster with his accounts.

Comrade Wisdom has been appointed patriotic instructor and post service officer as well as chairman of Americanism. He should be right at home there and we expect to see and hear considerable activity in that department from here on out.

The post has voted to take out a membership in the Ocean Beach Chamber of Commerce and will have an official representative present at all future meetings. This is done in order that we may keep in closer touch, and better assist in community activities for the general betterment of our civic affairs. Civic betterment being among the principal objects of our organization, we take this means of cooperation. What have you to offer?

It is reported that there are several hundred veterans living at the beach who are eligible to membership in their veteran organization, but who are still outside thefold. It is really too bad to think that we are not all willing to do our full share. It is hard enough when you have to do one man's work in addition to your own, but when you have to do ten or twenty men's work on top of that, it gets right tough at times. Have you joined your veteran organization yet?

O Tuesday, March 5, a card party will be held at the home of Mrs. Geo. Speer at 4761 Del Monte at 2 p. m. under the auspices of the ladies auxiliary to the Lt. Bert A. Allen auxiliary, V. F. W. Bridge and 500 will be played.

Thursday March 7, at 1 p. m., the Lt. Bert A. Allen auxiliary will hold their semi-monthly sewing bee at the home of Mrs. Fred H. Norris 4420 Brighton avenue. Ladies of the auxiliary we need your ideas as well as workmanship.

LIFE—THE GREAT ADVENTURE

Would you put your feet on that road which leads to the heart of the universe? Learn to forgive your fellows, for this means developing and is bringing into manifestation your higher manhood. Learn to love for this is the voice of divinity within you. Be self-forgetful because when you are self-forgetful the veils of personality and selfishness fall from your eyes. Become impersonal for then you are no longer gripped by personal desires, held in bondage by your own lower being.

The Ocean Beach Theosophical club will meet Thursday evening, March 7 at 7:30 p. m. in the club rooms on Abbott street. Mrs. Mora Forbes will be the speaker and the discussion will concern life. There will be a short Sanskrit lesson. All interested persons are welcome and there will be an opportunity for the answering of questions.

HOME AND BUSINESS REDUCTIONS

"The new rates will give the greater reduction to the use of electricity in the home, and to the use of lighting in business establishments. The reduction to the average home user will be about 10%, and the reduction to the average commercial user will be about 12%.

AMONG LOWEST IN NATION

"The new domestic schedules will be among the lowest in the Nation in accordance with charts just released by the United States Government. These charts were incorporated in the official report by the Federal Power Commission showing the result of a nation-wide survey covering rates charged for domestic electricity as of January 1, 1935 in all cities of over 50,000 population.

LOW RATES DESIGNED TO ENCOURAGE GREATER USE

"The new rate schedules should encourage the greater use of electricity because as the use increases the cost per kilowatthour becomes less. Domestic customers using over 50 kilowatthours per month will earn a rate of 3c per kilowatthour for the excess usage and customers using over 2000 kilowatthours will qualify for a rate of 2c per kilowatthour for the excess use.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him: For in him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily." These words of Paul to the Colossians are the Golden Text in the Lesson-Sermon on "Christ Jesus" on Sunday in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The Lesson-Sermon includes the verses from the Gospel of John: "Jesus answered them, and said, My doctrine is not mine, but his that sent me. If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself. He that speaketh of himself seeketh his own glory: but he that seeketh his glory that sent him, the same is true, and no unrighteousness is in him."

Among the passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, are the statements: "Jesus taught the way of Life by demonstration, that we may understand how this divine Principle heals the sick, casts out error, and triumphs over death. Jesus presented the ideal of God better than could any man whose origin was less spiritual."

BURGLARS AT LOMA PORTAL —OTHER POLICE REPORTS

At the home of Mrs. Chet Harritt, 3111 Shadowlawn, February 18th between 7 to 10:30 p. m. a burglar pushed a hole in wire screen, lifted hook and entered the house thru the window, taking $30 in currency from Mrs. Harritt's purse. She was at home in another part of the house

The same evening while Mr. and Mrs. Willard Hage, jr., were at the home of Dr. Goodell, 3119 Ibsen, Mrs. Hage left her purse on a window next to the patio and same was found rifled a short time later, $4 to $5 cash being taken and other articles to the value of $15.

On the evening of the 20th, also while the family was in the house, a burglar entered thru a window of the bedroom, at the home of Mrs. H. P. Landon, 3111 Freeman street, and took $11 from a purse.

Ruth Warn, 17, of 2170 Ebers street, was reported missing by her folks on Sunday. She left home Saturday evening it was believed in company with a Jack Vansickle, a friend and neighbor. Police have been asked to help locate her, for her mother is seriously ill.

Mrs. Roy Rockwood, 4894 Niagara avenue, reported the loss of a $65 gold Elgin watch, which was recovered a few days later, it was said.

Bert F. Surry, 1237 Twenty-fifth street, on Tuesday found his cottage at 3610 Strandway at Mission Beach had been entered thru a window which was broken by the burglars and that dishes, silver, cutlery, etc., to the value of $43 had been taken.

In the early part of the month Harry W. Johnson of Mission Beach was picked up by the radio police car within ten minutes after he is reported to have run into the car of J. R. Hall of 4051 Alameda drive which was parked at 2808 Chatsworth blvd. February 13th he was tried in the court of Judge Terry, given $50 fine, $35 of which was suspended.

THE WAY TO DEAL WITH ENEMIES
Matthew 5—43-48

Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor, and hate thine enemy. 44. But I say unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you; 45. That ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven: for he maketh his sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust. 46. For if ye love them which love you, what reward have ye? do not even the publicans the same? 47. And if ye salute your brethern only, what do ye more than others? do not even the publicans so? 48. Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect.

SUNNY SOUTH REPORTED FOR TOWNSEND PLAN

Mrs. Muncy Jordan at 1975 Bacon street, received a letter from her mother in Chattanooga, Tenn. recently enclosing this little clipping from the Chattanooga Times. They are counting very much on the Townsend plan in the sunny south:

The song, now being distributed to Congressmen goes as follows:

When our old age pension check comes to our door,
We won't have to dread the poorhouse any more.
Though we're old and bent and gray,
There will be gold among the gray
When our old age pension check comes to our door.

When our old age pension check comes to our door.
Dear old Grandma won't be lonesome any more—
They'll be waiting at the gate—
Every night she'll have a date,
When our old age pension check comes to our door.

Grow a flowing long white beard and sport a cane;
Because you've reached your second childhood, don't complain;
Life will just begin at 60, so be gay—
When the Townsend plan goes through you'll be O. K.

When our old age pension check comes to our door.
Every girl will choose a Grand-pa to adore;
How the wedding bells will ring,
Ripe old age will be the thing,
When our old age pension check comes to our door.

G. De PURUCKER LODGE No. 37

You are cordially invited to attend a free lecture sponsored by the G. de Purucker lodge of Ocean Beach, Friday, March 8th, 7:30 p. m. at the lodge rooms, 1940 Abbott street, between Newport and Santa Monica. Speaker: Miss Alice Pierce of the Theosophical Headquarters, Point Loma. Subject: Psychic faculties and powers.

BAPTIST CHURCH SERVICES

"A Guest of God" will be the sermon topic of Rev. W. S. Dunn in the morning hour of worship at 11 a. m. The Lord's Supper is to be observed during this service.

The evening service is at 7:30 p. m. and the pastor will speak on the subject "The Wonderous Story".

Come and hear the gospel message and enjoy the singing of old hymns.

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

Miss Judith Tyberg, instructor of Sanskrit in Theosophical University, will lecture at 3 o'clock next Sunday afternoon at the Theosophical Headquarters, Point Loma, on the subject "Why Brotherhood?". She will be assisted in answering questions by Emmett Small who is on the editorial staff of the magazines published at Theosophical University press.

In addition to her Sanskrit work at Point Loma, Miss Tyberg also conducts a Sanskrit class in San Diego in which the esoteric interpretation of Sanskrit terms used in the Theosophical philosophy is the prominent feature.

In dealing with her subject Sunday afternoon Miss Tyberg will point out that Brotherhood is not a sentimental idea, but that it is a scientific fact in Nature. She says that one cannot study life as a whole without turning inwards and upwards to the causes of things; and such a study shows us that we are brothers, that what affects one affects all, even the distant stars. Why Brotherhood? Because it is the heart-life of scientific knowledge, and its intellectual conception is the mind of that body of materialistic scientific knowledge to which all the greatest minds are turning in their search for Truth.

M. E. CHURCH SERVICES

We are glad to announce that the Reverend James H. Hughes will be in the pulpit next Sunday morning having recovered from the influenza which forced him to refrain from preaching for a time. The subject for next Sunday morning will be "Do We Need Forgiveness?". Communion service will follow the discourse. Music will be furnished by the choir under the direction of Mrs. Anna Forsythe.

Sunday school will meet at 9:45 classes held for all age groups from kindergarten to adult. H. I. Bingham superintendent; Dr. W. B. Leonard, assistant.

"Instruction in things moral and spiritual is most necessary to the making of the highest type of citizenship."—Theodore Roosevelt.

The Young people's evening meeting at seven o'clock. A meeting by young people for young people. Advisors—H. I. Bingham, Rev. and Mrs. James Hughes.

2,000 PTA DELEGATES EXPECTED IN SAN DIEGO

Of the numerous conventions coming to San Diego for the Exposition, and during 1935, the California Congress of Parents and Teachers will furnish by far the most delegates. 2000 delegates are expected.

Mrs. Paul Schiefer, president of the San Diego Council says that in line with a hospitality program, hospitality booths will be erected, under supervision of Mrs. Mae Angelo, hospitality chairman for 9th District, where incoming delegates will be served refreshments and be routed thru scenic spots into San Diego. One of these booths will be placed just inside the county line this side of Oceanside. Delegates will be routed thru La Jolla, Pacific Beach, Mission Beach and Ocean Beach.

POUNDING WAVES WASH HOLE IN CLIFFS

Monday afternoon at the foot of Adair street, Sunset Cliffs park, waves undermined a section about twenty feet toward the Ocean off Sunset Cliffs Blvd.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Hundley and their 11-year-old daughter, of 3328 Palm avenue, drove off the pavement to sit and watch the waves as thousands do during the year at this particular point. Suddenly a back wheel sank and Hundley on inspection of the trouble found a hole had opened in the parking and waves could be seen underneath. Unable to get his car out alone he called Ocean Beach police and a truck from the street operating department came and helped drag the car from its perilous position. As the car was removed the soil gave way and opened a hole about 6x8 feet oblong which widened out below.

It seems the waves occasioned by the high wind of Saturday and Sunday had found a soft spot in the cliff and washed out from underneath a great hole, 20 to 30 feet deep, with the top crust of earth being packed had held until the weight of Hundley's car had broken it in.

The city is fortunate no serious accident occured and they immediately constructed a double barrier around the hole so that cars and pedestrians would avoid the danger.

THE POINT LOMA ASSEMBLY

The women's division of the Point Loma assembly enjoyed a very interesting program when it met at the clubhouse last Thursday for its regular afternoon meeting.

Mrs. Lou V. Conover gave a most appreciative talk on "Donn Byrne and His Work" inspiring her audience with a desire to know more of this brilliant Irish writer.

Mrs. Virgil R. Knight, music chairman, presented Mrs. Allen Houser who sang several lovely songs. A costume dance was also given by Gail Littlepage and Margaret Botterel, from the Gracelyn school of the dance. Mrs. Evelyn Wooden furnished the piano accompaniment.

Mrs. Robert Baker and Mrs. Louise Myers were hostesses during the social hour.

Lutheran Mission

"Christ, The Willing Savior" will be the theme of the sermon at the 10:45 o'clock service. It is the willingness of Christ to suffer in our stead, that has turned the course into a blessing, that has made Him our Redeemer and our Savior. This is an important thought for contemplation before entering the season of Lent.

"Jesus Blesses Little Children" is the Sunday school lesson for this Sunday. That Jesus loves and blesses little children and is their friend and that there is but one way to enter heaven for children and adults will be the thoughts brought out in the various departments.

A cordial invitation is extended all Lutherans as well as to the general public to attend these services.

SPECIAL LENTEN SERVICES

Beginning next Ash Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock special Lenten services will be held at the Ocean Beach Lutheran Mission, Newport and Abbott streets. Since this is the season of Lent, a time when the Christian church has set aside for a contemplation of Christ's passion and death, we shall at these services on Wednesday evenings consider the "Striking Passion Scenes". The subject for next Wednesday evening will be "Christ In Agony".

We ask you to interrupt the routine of your temporal interests and distractions to join us in the consideration of the sufferings and death of Him who came to establish your Salvation. We therefore earnestly invite you to attend all these services.

M. E. WOMEN'S COUNCIL MAR. 7

The Women's Council of the M. E. church will meet in the church parlor on Thursday, March 7th at 1:30. The guest speaker will be Miss Eloise Hafford, of Pasadena, who will speak at 2:30 on the subject, "The Responsibility of the Church and Community to the Adolescent Child." Members are urged to be present and visitors are cordially invited.

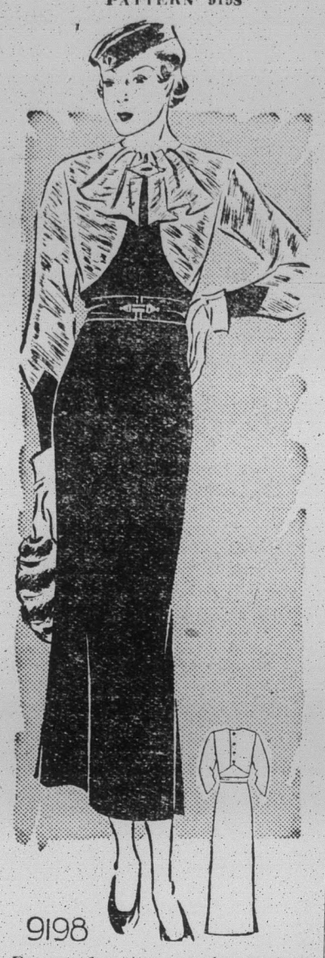
PERFECT FOR THE SMARTEST PARTY

PATTERN 9198



For an after-the-game dance, or an after-the-working-day dinner engagement, this lovely afternoon dress would be perfect. It's a shining hour frock, designed with an eye to the vogue for elegance in this winter's mode. A spirited double-jabot tops the bolero lines of its youthful bodice. Smart slashes at each side give a final touch of chic to its pencil-slim skirt. For a costume of unusual glamor, try chiffon velvet with shimmering metal cloth for the bodice bolero. Satin with velvet would be a lovely choice, too. Make the sleeves with nicely pointed cuffs or in a smart three-quarter length like the small back sketch.

Pattern 9198 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 16 requires 2⅜ yards 39-inch fabric, and 1¼ yards contrasting.

SEND FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Complete, Diagrammed Sew Chart Included.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern department, 232 West Eighteenth street, New York, N. Y.

"The time-table says that this train will arrive at nine-ten and it's half an hour late now," complained the traveler at the small-town railroad station.

"Well, 'taint ten yet is it?" the agent countered.—Portland Express.

Death in Good Cause

"Mother, papa wouldn't murder anybody, would he?"

"Why, certainly not, child! What makes you think so?"

"Well, I just heard him down in the cellar saying, 'Let's kill the other two, George'."

Impossible

Hubby—Well, dear, how are you getting on with your golf lessons?

Wifey—Pretty well, but when my teacher told me to address the ball I just couldn't think of a word to say!

Fame

"What I am today I owe to my wife," he said proudly.

"Well, what are you?" the other sneered.

"I'm the husband of the best bridge player in our neighborhood."

"Ave course, Donny," he acquiesced. "Ave course. Oi'll come back when ye're finished."

He went downstairs, rubbers thumping on the treads, but he stood at the bottom a long interval, shaking his head in misgiving and muttering to himself. Then he turned about and crept back as softly as a cat. On the upper landing he seated himself leaning against the thin partition of matched boards which separated him from the sick man.

A half hour, perhaps, Bird-Eye sat there growing cramped and chilly in the draughty hallway. Then he leaped to his feet with a little cry. From within had come a long, retching gasp, a sharp creak of bed springs, a thud on the floor. Blaine burst into the room. The catalogue was beside the bed. Old Don lay half doubled forward, face in the blankets, one limp hand swaying slightly as it dangled over the edge.

"Donny! Donny, b'y, what's up?"

He raised the limp figure, laid it back, stared hard at the face which now seemed so peaceful and then ran excitedly down the stairway in frenzied search of Joe Piette.

In the room was confusion after Doctor Sweet answered the hasty summons. The doctor felt vainly for a pulse, touched the shrunken breast of the old cruiser and then turned away with a significant shake of his head.

The usual things were said and then Bird-Eye and the physician were alone in the room. The little Irishman's eyes brimmed with tears but behind these was an intent look as of one who impatiently awaits opportunity to pursue a specific purpose, and when the others trooped down the stairway he closed the door and returned hastily to the bedside.

"Sure 'nd where is ut?" he asked beneath his breath, riffling the leaves of the bulky catalogue, shaking folds out of the rumpled blankets.

"What are you after, Bird-Eye?" the doctor asked.

"Ah! Here ut be!"

On his hands and knees, peering beneath the bed, he uttered that ejaculation and, reaching far under, rose to his knees with a sealed envelope in his hands.

Across the face was a scrawl, written with an indelible pencil. Blaine scowled as he tried to make out the words, got to his feet, and moved across the room to hold the envelope closer to the light. Doctor Sweet bent over it beside him.

"Ben Elliott," the latter read aloud. "Open this when the nut gets too hard to crack."

The doctor scratched his mustache. He turned his face to meet Bird-Eye's startled gaze.

"It's somethin', Doctor, thut he didn't dare die with on his soul! Somethin' he was fearful to tell if he lived, as well. . . . Somethin' . . ." His hand holding the letter trembled sharply. "Doctor, sure 'nd it's somethin' about th' owld devil himself!"

"Brandon?"

"None other!"

Emory Sweet straightened and gave a long drawn Hum-m-m.

"Brandon for sure!" Bird Eye whispered hoarsely. "'Twas Brandon kept Donny out av Tincup fer years, wa'n't it? 'Twas Brandon tuk him when he was hittin' th' booze years back 'nd made a slave av him, he did! It's Brandon who's be'n comin' here ivery night, not loike you or I'd come, but loike a masther 'd come to watch a slave. . . . a slave he was a-scared to have around. . . .

"Why was a rich man loike Nick Brandon afraid av 'n owld bum like Donny?" he demanded, shaking the letter almost accusingly close in the other's face. "Who was 't with Faxson when he died? Who was 't put Faxson's murder on McManus?" He gesticulated gravely toward the bed. "Him. . . . Him, Nick Brandon's slave, who wance was a man, who wint to hell with booze, who's truckled to Brandon evir since until his pore owld heart broke!"

"By George, Bird-Eye, it does look as though it might—" The doctor did not finish what he had started to say. Instead he remarked intently: "I'd give a good deal to know just what's in that letter!"

"Oi'll be takin' it myself to Ben Elliott this night. Aw, 'nd won't Misther Brandon squirm whin th' b'y starts in crackin' th' tough nut! 'Nd it's th' justice av the' saints, no less, that Brandon brings Elliott to Able's attiution in a foight over owld Donny."

They went down the stairway together after closing the door softly behind them, Bird-Eye muttering imprecations on the head of Nicholas Brandon.

And even as Doctor Sweet emerged from the dark mouth of the narrow stairway, the front door opened and Brandon himself entered the hotel, stamping new snow from his feet. Others were there, Piette, the drummer, the mill hands; two or three more. But Brandon's attention centered only on the physician.

"Well, Doctor?" he began and it seemed as though his lungs were too filled with air to speak comfortably. "How's our patient this evening?"

Emory Sweet looked grimly into the other's face.

"Old Don has taken the long trail," he said.

"Dead? . . . Dead!" Brandon's voice on the query pinched up a bit. And on the repetition of the word it fell hollowly, with a finality which might have indicated sorrow, dismay or amazement.

But none of these three was reflected in his face. In his dark eyes was just one expression: Relief. Relief! Relief from suspense, from worry; relief from dark and haunting fear!

"You don't say! So the old fellow's gone!" His voice was even now, colorless, assured, as was normal. "Well, it was to be expected, I suppose. Were you with him, Doctor?"

"No; he died alone."

Brandon drew a breath as one will who has asked an important question and received a pleasing or reassuring answer.

"Talking couldn't have helped a man in his condition. He . . . He didn't visit with anyone, did he?"

A queer hesitancy crept into his manner on this as though he shrank from knowing the reply and Doctor Sweet turned to Bird-Eye Blaine inquiringly. But Bird-Eye did not look at the doctor. He was staring at Brandon and as that individual's gaze, following the doctor's, encountered his, the Irishman's lips twitched into a bitter smile.

"So ye're after wonderin' whut pore owld Donny said on his deathbed, are ye?" he demanded and with this challenge stepped down from the stairway and crossed the floor slowly toward Brandon. "So ye're worryin', now, over whut he moight 've said, eh?" He laughed, a dry and mirthless laugh, and came to a halt a pace from the man who was so powerful in Tincup.

"Worrying?" Brandon countered steadily. "You're either drunk or crazy, Blaine!"

"Mebby!"—with a sharp nod. "Mebbe both. But old Donny wa'n't. . . . He didn't do talkin', Misther Brandon. Rid yer moind av that worry. Sure, 'nd he didn't talk to a soul av what was on his moind whin he knowed he lay dyin' . . . No talk! No talk fer somebody to repate 'nd git twisted up 'nd lave out things thut shuld 've be'n told. . . . He wrote ut! That's whut he done, Brandon!"—voice mounting. "He wrote ut! 'Nd he wrote ut fer one who'll make ut so hot that ye'll wish ye was sizzlin' in hell!"

With a sweeping gesture he thrust the envelope close to Brandon's face, so close that the man jerked his head backward sharply.

"He wrote ut!" Bird-Eye cried triumphantly. "'Nd may th' saints speed th' day whin Misther Elliott puts to use th' thing owld Donny had to tell!"

Grimly he poised an instant before the larger man. Then he thrust the letter into his shirt pocket, buttoned his jacket tightly across it, slapped his chest decisively, almost boastfully, and without another word strode to the door and let himself out into the street.

It was late when Bird-Eye stepped into the darkness of the tiny office where Ben Elliott slept at Hoot Owl, struck a match, lifted it high above his head and spoke:

"Hi! Misther Elliott!" Ben roused himself and squinted at the flickering match. "Git up! Rouse up! I got big news fer ye!"

They lighted a lantern and by its glow Ben read the inscription on the letter which Don Stuart had left him as Bird-Eye hastily and excitedly explained.

"There's somethin' in ut Donny'd carried secrut fer long!" he whispered hoarsely. "Ut's to do with Brandon, with fightin' fire with fire, or I'm th' worst guesser in th' woods!"

"Poor old beggar!" Ben said gently. "Poor! Him?"

"Stuart, I meant. Tough to die that way. And I never got in to see him again!"

Bird-Eye nodded. "Yes. But mebby he's done ye as great a favor as anny man evir done! The's somethin' in ut about Sam Faxson 'nd McManus. I'd bet me last shirt!"

Ben shrugged and turned the envelope over. Then he rose, yawned and slipped it into the drawer of the plain table that did service for an office desk.

"Ain't ye goin' to read ut, even?" Bird-Eye demanded in extreme amazement.

"Why no. You saw the directions: to open it when the nut gets too hard to crack."

Blaine opened his mouth! Words would not come. "Well, I'm domned!" he breathed finally. "Here mebby ye've got th' club thut'll droive him out uv th' country 'nd ye ain't even curious about ut!"

Elliott smiled. "Maybe it's only a sick man's dream, Bird-Eye. And again maybe its' an . . . an ace in the hole. I've never yet looked at my hole card until I'm beaten on the board. I'm not beaten yet, by a long walk."

Bird-Eye scratched his head.

"No, not yet. 'Nd may th' saints kape ye evir as far from a lickin' as ye are now, Ben Elliott! But . . . I'd loike to bet my noble tourin' car thut owld Donny wrote somethin' to do with th' killin' av Sam Faxson, I would!"

"Well, you can't get any takers here, Bird-Eye. Not tonight. Into the hay, now, and let me sleep."

And about the time Ben Elliott burrowed into his pillow and shed responsibility and perplexing problems, Nicholas Brandon turned in the pacing of his cold and otherwise deserted office and cocked his head alertly. It was not unusual for him to be late in his office. But those drawn shades and this quick, restless, harried march to and fro, around and about, and that perspiration which beaded his forehead, and the sudden stoppings and listenings at the slightest sound . . . Those were not usual for a man so thoroughly established in his community that he dictated every phase of its life and activity.

"No. . . . A Clear Head Now!"

He stopped after a time and opening a drawer of his big desk took from it a bottle of whisky, shook himself and muttered softly. For a time he held it in his hands, debating. Then, with finality, muttered: "No. . . . A clear head now!" He shut the liquor in its place and resumed his pacing.

Nicholas Brandon may have ruled Tincup and the surrounding country with an iron absolutism. He may have had a deserved reputation for being a strong man, a resourceful man. But tonight, alone in his office, remembering the words and looks and gestures of Bird-Eye Blaine, a lowly employee of an insolvent venture, seeing again the flash of that letter waved before his eyes, he was no commanding figure. He was a frightened man, a haunted man, battling to retain a hold on himself.

CHAPTER IV

Ben Elliott had been on the job at Hoot Owl just two weeks. Able Armitage was with him for the night. Ben was tireless, it seemed. Since the beginning he had labored daytimes, schemed until late at night, and now he spent another hour with Able, trying, as he said, to make every dime look like a dollar.

"Now, say!" His face took on a curious smile as they finally folded their papers. "I haven't had much time to think about anything but patching up this outfit and getting it to function, but through it all one thing's kept bobbing up so often it's got my curiosity on its hind legs.

"Who was McManus? What about Sam Faxson? Where does the little girl you're guardian for come in?"

"Little girl!" Able said, startled and then smiled. "Why, Dawn is—"

"I keep hearing about these men McManus and Faxson and how Brandon is trying to beat you down so he can cheat the orphan child. How about it all?"

Able's smile died out. He shoved up his spectacles and rubbed his sleepy eyes.

"We haven't had much time for history, have we? I'd intended to give you the story of this property but we've been so concerned with bank balances and paper due and breakdowns and such things that I just haven't had time.

"I'll have to make a long story short; just hit the high spots. First, Nicholas Brandon and Denny McManus came into this country when they weren't much more than boys. They were the first hardwood operators in this country. The pine had been skinned out, but not many hardwood camps had at that time gotten this far from the centers of things. They'd had some experience and a little money but they hit at the right time, picked up a raft of timber for a song and started turning it into a fortune.

"McManus was married and had the daughter, Dawn. Brandon never married. Just when they were swinging nicely, everything running smooth as butter, McManus' wife died. He was as deeply in love as any man I've ever seen and it sent him completely to pot. He took to heavy drinking and got himself in a bad way.

"Of the two, Denny was the more popular. He was friendly, charitable, had a heart as big as a camp stove and as soft as a sponge. He'd go the route for anybody. Why—probably you've never even heard this—when old Don Stuart rimmed the company it was McManus who stood in the way of prosecution. Don had cruised and bought a lot of stuff for them. He always had been a drinker himself and on one spree got into some sort of mess and crooked the company out of three or four hundred dollars. Enough, anyhow, to let himself in for a long term in the penitentiary if they'd pushed it. Brandon wanted to prosecute, all right, but McManus stood up for Don. That was typical of the man: friendly, forgiving, a real human being, if you understand.

"But Mac went to pieces himself. He would be off on a bender for weeks at a time and scarcely get over the shakes before he'd start on another. Finally he got so bad that Brandon sent him out to a hunting camp on the river with a fine old trapper named Sam Faxson. Great old character, Sam. Brandon figured—and it seemed reasonable—that Sam could keep Mac away from booze, you see. He was there a week or so, tapering off gradually, seeing nobody but Sam. Brandon was working away like a nailer, buying up a lot of stuff for himself, probably figuring that if McManus didn't straighten up he'd operate on his own hook. McManus had this Hoot Owl stuff cinched in his own name before he went bad.

"Well, one night we were in the middle of a three-day blizzard and Sam Faxson stumbled into Don Stuart's shanty on the edge of town, shot through the arm and frozen so badly that he died the next afternoon. Don's story"—voice slowing and a finger raising for emphasis— "was that Faxson told him McManus had gotten out of booze and turned ugly and that when he—Sam—tried to prevent him from starting for town after more whisky he went wild at Sam and shot him. He was hit in the arm, had to have help and in trying to get it suffered more exposure than any man could stand.

"Well, that caused a great stir! A party hit straight out for the camp and couldn't find hide nor hair nor sign of Mac. A couple of old trailers agreed that somebody had gone down to the river below the camp the night that Faxson was shot. The Mad Woman is swift at that bend and never freezes. The trail seemed to go right to the edge of the stream and the accepted theory was that McManus, realizing what he'd done, had drowned himself. The fact that nothing has ever been seen or heard of him since lends strength to that supposition.

SYNOPSIS

Ben Elliott—from "Yonder"—arrives at the lumbering town of Tincup, with Don Stuart, old, very sick man, whom he has befriended. He defeats Bull Duval, "king of the river," and town bully, in a log-birling contest. Nicholas Brandon, the town's leading citizen, resents Stuart's presence, trying to force him to leave town and Elliott, resenting the act, knocks him down. Elliott is arrested. He finds a friend in Judge Able Armitage. The judge hires him to run the one lumber camp, the Hoot Owl, that Brandon has not been able to grab. This belongs to Dawn McManus, daughter of Brandon's old partner, who has disappeared with a murder charge hanging over his head. Brandon sends his bully, Duval, to beat up Ben, and Ben worsts him in a fist fight and throws him out of camp.

Two Species of Peafowl; Can Endure All Climates

In a bulletin of the New York Zoological society it is pointed out in an article by Lee S. Randall, curator of birds at the New York Zoological park, that Solomon is credited as the first owner of the peafowl or peacock outside India. The peafowl, while a native of India and Java, is readily adaptable to all climates. The readiness with which the peacock has accepted the conditions of captivity in all sections of the world and in all kinds of climate, Randall says, has made them so common as to cloud our appraisal somewhat, but the fact remains that it is difficult to find a bird to excel them in beauty of form and coloration.

"There are two species of peafowl, the Indian, or blue, and the Javan, or green," Randall says in the society's bulletin. "The Indian fowl is a native of India and Ceylon. It keeps to the low country, seldom going above 2,000 feet. Although it is naturally accustomed to the steaming heat of such localities, it nevertheless has the ability to endure, without discomfort, temperatures well below zero Fahrenheit. It is this adaptability which has allowed the bird to be enjoyed in most countries of the world. The male Indian peafowl is characterized by the deep blue neck and breast, the long, delicate and wonderfully 'eyed' train formed by the upper tail coverts and the fanlike crest on the head. The female is a dull gray in general with the neck and upper breast iridescent green."

Randall adds that, besides the typical bird, there are three other color varieties; black-shouldered, the white and pied.—New York Herald Tribune.

LONGEST RAIL BRIDGE

A British firm of engineers recently completed building the longest railway bridge in the world. It is the Lower Zambesi bridge, erected to provide uninterrupted railway communication between Beira and Lake Nyasa, in East Africa, and is 11,650 feet, or nearly two miles and a quarter, in length. There are six approach spans and 33 main spans, the latter being supported by concrete piers sunk in the bed of the river, or on mass concrete bases founded on the rock at the river bank. Hell Gate bridge, in New York is nearly 2,000 feet longer than the Lower Zambesi bridge, but 10,818 feet of this is over land and only a total of 2,735 feet is over three separate branches of the East river, whereas the entire length of the Lower Zambesi bridge is over the water during the winter season.

The "liquid test"

...it ENDS bowel worries for many people

This is a test that tells you whether the system needs a cathartic change. If you have constant sluggish spells or bilious attacks, and laxatives seem to make things worse, it would be wise to try this:

Stop all use of any laxative that does not encourage variation from a "fixed dose" (which may be entirely too large a dose for your individual need). Use instead, a liquid laxative that you can measure and regulate as to dose. As necessary to repeat, take smaller doses, less and less often, until the bowels are moving without any help at all.

Doctors use liquid laxatives, and a properly prepared liquid laxative, containing natural laxative agents like senna and cascara is a joy and a comfort; a real help in establishing regularity. Ask your doctor about this! (Doctors use liquid laxatives.) You can get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a most dependable liquid laxative, at any drug store.

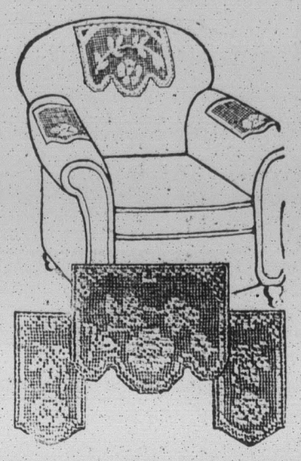
HERE'S CHAIR SET EASY TO CROCHET

By GRANDMOTHER CLARK



Since crochet work is again interesting the art needleworkers, why not pick up your No. 8 or 9 steel crochet hook and thread about size 15 and crochet this attractive three-piece set for your living room chair, or for a gift? It will surely be appreciated and admired. Chair backs and arm rests are old decorations but now growing in popularity and are modern. This set is worked in the large filet stitch, works up rapidly and is simple work even for the inexperienced. The center piece measures 14x11 inches, the arm rests 6x11 inches, with about size 15 thread. By using a larger hook and crocheting looser, the finished pieces will be larger, if desired.

In the large filet an open mesh equals 1 triple crochet (thread twice over hook). Chain 3, skip 3. A solid mesh equals 3 triple crochet. Add 4 triple crochet for each additional solid mesh.

Send 10 cents to our Crochet department for directions and working diagram for this No. 895, or if you have no material you can get the entire outfit for 40c, namely, instructions, diagram, crochet hook, and sufficient cream color thread to complete the three pieces.

Address—Home Craft Co.—Dept. B—Nineteenth and St. Louis Avenue, St. Louis, Mo.

Inclose a stamped addressed envelope for reply when writing for any information.

SCENTED "GAS"

Fastidious motorists can now fill the tanks of their cars with scented petrol. A process has been developed whereby it is possible to perfume petrol, and it may soon be a delight to trail a motorist as the exhaust pipe of his car emits violet, lilac, or possibly attar of roses. A patent has been granted for a process which eliminates the unpleasant smells from the exhaust gases of internal-combustion engines. These gases can be given an agreeable odor by adding to each gallon of petrol four grammes of an artificial musk compounds, which it is claimed has the property of resisting combustion in the engines of motor car and converting the unpleasant smell of exhausted gas and half-burned oil into a delightful odor.—London Tit-Bits.

Golden Wedding Celebrated Wednesday.

Wednesday this week at 4721 Voltaire street, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Roberts celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, some forty to fifty old and new friends calling with gifts and best wishes for a continued happy married life. The Roberts were married in Mattoon, Ill., Feb. 27, 1884. After leaving their native state, Illinois, they lived in Wheeling W. Va., Montana and Wisconsin, coming to this section in 1913. They have lived at Ocean Beach now for about a year and claim that nowhere else have they found as friendly folks and neighbors.

The celebration of the fiftieth anniversary started Sunday last, when they were given a golden wedding dinner at the home of their son Ray C. and wife at 3510 Alabama street. Three other sons and their families were present, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. George D. Roberts of San Diego and Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Roberts of Calexico. The fifth son, James E. Roberts is in Billings, Montana. Other guests at the Sunday dinner were Mr. and Mrs Billy Bevans of Escondido, who was in Universal pictures with Ray Roberts; Mr. and Mrs. Herman Asher of San Diego; and Mrs. Paul Growe, a sister of Mr. Roberts, from Los Angeles.

Wednesday at their home here gifts from their many friends included flowers from Bessie Cooper, past president American Legion auxiliary; Mrs. McKie of the County health department; Mrs. Pearl Wood; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Murphy; Ocean Beach American Legion auxiliary; a great large cake from Mrs. Katherine Rigg, and many other presents and flowers.

Mr. Roberts is fond of surf and pier fishing as well as base ball, and says he catches as large a fish as the best of local boys. He is a mechanic by profession and during the war days helped make explosives at the potash plant on south San Diego bay

Mrs. Roberts has a fondness for piano and other musical work. She is now musician for the Ocean Beach auxiliary of the American Legion, the V F.W. auxiliary and the Royal Neighbors of America. She is past sen or vice president of the Howard circle G.A.R. and was for years active in the Golden Poppy chapter of War Mothers, a member of the Mother's club of San Diego, and when living in Calexico help start the first American Legion auxiliary there.

RETIRED PRINTER LAID TO REST MONDAY

Funeral services were held Monday at 2 p. m. for Isaac Victor Julian, 75, retired printer who has made his home in Ocean Beach for seven or eight years, coming here from Bellingham, Washington, where he was a member of the Spanish American War veterans. He was also a member of San Diego Typographical Union.

Julian lived a quiet life here, making his home at 4953 Saratoga avenue. His last illness kept him inside his home for several weeks. He passed away early Friday morning, February 22nd. The remains were shipped to San Marcus, Texas, for interment.

Mr. Julian was a member of a pioneer Indiana family which was prominent in political and educational activities of that state. He was the son of Isaac H. Julian, pioneer journalist of Indiana and Texas, and a nephew of the late George W. Julian, who was a member of the original committee on the nomination of Abraham Lincoln for president. Mr. Julian also was a distant relative of Former President Herbert Hoover.

LEADERSHIP TRAINING FOR CHURCH SCHOOLS

The Ocean Beach Church Schools will participate in the meetings of the International Leadership Training school, at the Park Boulevard Methodist Episcopal church six Tuesday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30, beginning Tuesday evening, February 26. The aim of these gathering is: "More consecrated and better trained leadership." Suggested problems and their solution will be a part of each program. Topics will be The Growth of Christian Personality; The Teaching Work of the Church; Primary Department Administration; A Study in Later Childhood; Intermediate Department Administration, and The Life of Christ. The meetings are for all Church School workers, for parents, for those preparing to be Church School workers—for all leaders in the life of the church, and for all those who desire a better knowledge of the Bible, and of how to make their lives count for more in the church and community.

ROADSIDE CLEAN-UP PROGRESS

The progress chart shows at this time that 22 organizations of the Chambers of Commerce groups over the county have organized for improving the appearance of San Diego county. These groups have not only organized but 50% or more have actually started work, and in their communities a great improvement in appearance has taken place. The efforts put forth by these public-spirited citizens of San Diego county is most gratifying to the public and to the tourist.

:-: ASH WEDNESDAY :-:

Again this brief, simple, sincere Lenten Message addressed to the heart of suffering humanity. It is inspired out of the consciousness of my own soul that our dimmed eyes and dulled ears must be opened to see and tuned in to hear Christ calling us up from dust to divinity. Ash Wednesday summons us across the darkening centuries once more in these final days of world chaos and spiritual confusion to this hour of discipline and season of fasting, penitence and prayer.

The false gods of temporal wealth, power and passion have failed but not fled a soul-sick and mind warped civilization. The sordid, the sensual, the selfish, with all their impure powers of oppression, lust and crime, have brought us to the verge of a decline and fall so terrible in its implications as to presage, if not instantly averted, a return to the darkness of the cave man's soulless night. Christ comes from the throne of His Father and our Father in the purity, power and peace of His Millenial Kingdom only in answer to the intense agony of universal prayer.

We should be amazed then at the spiritual blindness and mental apathy of this age that sells for a sordid mess of sensual pottage its birthright to things divine, its heritage in the kingdom of Heaven. We live in an era of vast and varied learning and opportunity. We are citizens, with all the educational rights and privileges of an enlightened Democracy and a Living church. Our constitution guarantees to us, who desire and deserve it, freedom to worship God, freedom to fashion the pattern of our daily lives.

We are indeed free beings under no code of cumpulsion, but the Sermon on the Mount. The choice is ever ours. We can continue to bow down in the dust of our desires, worship the Golden Calf in the Temple of Mammon; and suffer its penalties of Corruption: Or, we can be still and hear within The Temple of our tuned in lives, the great Arch Angel chorus, singing from out the heaven of heavens a new song, over the Bethlehem birth of Christ Our King.

We stand today on the threshold of the greatest of all earth's testing times, both temporal and spiritual. The age draws to its dynamic close. In this year of 1935 Lent comes and becomes peculiarly and intensely the glorious springtime of God. It is now His sowing season for the Millenial harvest. Lent will teach you the way of the cross. It will make real to you the Crucified. This season will help you to take an honest inventory of your spiritual life. For forty days Lent becomes the especial treasure house of God. The key to the abundance of its riches hangs in the free will sanctuary of His Holy Temple, within your very heart of heart. Let this Lent then revision with all its exceeding grace and power our inward sight. May we see with eyes undimmed, and hear with ears no longer dulled or earth holden Our Lord Jesus Christ. The Light and The Voice of the world. He is The Messiah, The Son of God, who alone can bring peace and purity and power to a sin sick world. Let us go out to greet Him and bid Him enter our hearts on Easter morn.
